When visiting Albany don't fail to give them a call.

Mr. Beecher, a Chicago sheep buyer passed through LaGrande the other day with a band of 24,000 sheep, purchased in Umatilla county. The sheep were driven over the old trail in the hills back of town. A very extensive crew is required to handle the sheep, and four wagon loads of provisions were purchased from LaGrande's merchants.

Waterloo Notes.

Mr. Jas. Morgan has moved from the Saltmarsh farm to town.

The photo gallery is now ready for business and seems to be well patronized.

Recorder Rice had a couple of cases in his court, and the result was a small contribution to the city funds.

A petition has been unanimously signed asking for the appointment of a justice of the peace at this place.

Mrs. E. C. Phelps visited at Albany last week.

The funeral of Mrs. J. P. Simpson who died here last week was largely attended. The sermon was preached by Rev. Flowman.

Visitors begin to be quite plenty here on Sunday's. As soon as the water falls a little lower so that the springs are unobscured, then there will be large crowds here every Sunday and campers will soon make their appearance also.

The Big 4 played here on Monday night to a very fair audience considering the place and the stringency of the times.

The graduating exercises of the Lebanon public school were held in the Presbyterian church, last Friday afternoon. The church platform was handsomely decorated, and the walls were adorned by the class motto, "Step by Step," while a ladder of laurel extended from the platform to the motto on the wall. The class numbered ten pupils and their essays were bright, original and interesting. They all did well and reflected great credit on the teacher and the school. The essays of Madge Marks, Minnie Thompson, Bessie Warner, Ora Andrews, Jno. Hardin and Walter Miller were especially commendable. Pres. Bloss of the State Agricultural College was present and delivered an earnest address to the class and presented them their diplomas. The class consists of the following pupils: Jno. Hardin, Louis Hardin, Walter, Miller, Claude Eaton, Claude Ayers, Minnie Thompson, Madge Marks, Bessie Warner, Ora Andrews and Lulu Crandall. It is the first class to go out from our school as a graduating class and they are worthy the honor of being the leaders of this important movement. A large and appreciative audience was present and manifested great interest. The Choral Society rendered the music in their usual charming manner. In the evening Pres. Bloss gave an interesting lecture on the subject of "Culture." At the close of the lecture Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Miller gave a reception in honor of the graduates. The parlors of their handsome residence were thrown open to the class and their many friends. After partaking of refreshments in the shape of ice cream and cake, The assembled guests were treated to several piano solos by Miss Lida Elkins, after which the guests departed for their several homes.

The house built a little over a year ago in A. Cowan's addition by the Case's, and which was sold last December at sheriff's sale and bid in by Ashby Pierce, of Albany, was burned down by fire last Tuesday night. It is supposed that the house was set a fire by some unknown person. Boys have been in the habit of entering the house and playing cards, and perhaps they went off and left a fire from which it caught. The building was vacant and was insured in the Hartford Insurance Co. for $200.

The Portland city election occurred Monday and resulted in the election of the following officers by the plurality named: City attorney, J. B. Beach, democrat, 422; City auditor, A. N. Gambell, republican, 521; City surveyor, T. M. Hulbert, republican, 978, Superintendent of streets, H. D. Gradon, republican, 243; Councilman, sixth ward, Joseph Terwilliger republican; Councilman, seventh ward, T. C. Malone republican; eleventh ward, John Mock, democrat. The complexion of the council is six democrats, four republicans and one populist.

The Deadmond boys have a drive of ten million feet of logs in the McKenzie river which they are running to the mills at Coburg, Harrisburg and Corvallis. They are putting them in 24 miles up the river, and some of them have already reached the Willamette river, and by the time the whole drive is in the water some of the logs will be at Corvallis. The river is now at a good stage and swift and the logs are taken down at a lively gate.—Eugene Register.

The Myrtle Creek Mining Co., by its attorneys Geo. B. Dorris and Tillmon Ford commenced suit against Dr. L. W. Brown, former president and director of the company for $25,000. They also commenced suit against the same party and E. M. Corbus to recover $7,440. His Honor Judge Fisk granted a temporary injunction restraining the defendants from disposing of their property and 2182 shares of stock held by them until the final order of the circuit court. The whole affair seems to be merely a strife whether the incorporations pay for the development of the mine or the expenses is left for the stockholders to bear.

An editorial correspondence in the Dakota Chronicle, who has been taking in the world's fair at Chicago, says: "Saturday we went through the horticultural building containing the exhibit of fruits from many lands and many climes. In natural fruits, the state of Oregon excels all others in quality. California of course takes the lead in quantity, many counties in California having a larger display than some whole states. But the luscious fruits of Oregon are the delight of all visitors. Washington state, in my judgement stands next to Oregon in fruit exhibits. The plant department baffles description; flower, palm trees from far away lands and islands beyond the sea in endless number and nameless variety.

Horsemen of Crook county complain that they cannot dispose of their horses at anything like reasonable figures. The truth is, says the Prineville News, that only a comparatively few men engaged in this business in this county raise the right kind of stock. The small, no-purpose horse is hard to sell at any price. Nobody wants him. The well-bred draft horse sells readily at fairly good price. There is a constant demand for his use. So also will a well-bred driving horse sell. And he will sell for all he is worth. The market is not so much at fault. It is the grower of the scrubs.

The Oregon City Enterprise says: George T. Meyers, president of the Oregon world's fair commission, was in the city Wednesday and brought with him the finest salmon ever caught in the waters of Oregon. The fish is 54 inches long and 40 inches around and weighs 82 pounds. Mr. Meyers brought it up to have it frozen in one of Smith & Lovett's finest cakes of ice so that he might send it back to be placed with the Oregon exhibit at the Chicago. When this king of fishes is frozen in a cake of clear crystal ice he will present a magnificent appearance and will attract a great deal of attention. Mr. Meyers is confident that he can manage not only to ship the specimen back in good shape but that he can preserve it inevitably after he gets it there. Messrs. Smith & Lovett have tendered to the world's fair commission the use of their plant for preparing all of their specimens that they may desire for exhibition and Mr. Meyers says they will make liberal use of the plant.

The marshal has up some notices announcing that he will sell one white mare weighing 1050 lbs and one bay horse weighing 750 lbs, Saturday May 19, at 1 o'clock, unless the owners call and get said horses.

A dispatch has been received from the First National bank of Chattanooga, Tenn., stating that Mr. Lanning had placed $10,500 to the credit of the First National bank of Albany. Another dispatch was also received from Capt. E. J. Lanning in Philadelphia, stating that he would be home immediately.—Herald.

About a fortnight ago Morgan Holt, a Southern Pacific brakeman, residing on the East Side had one of his legs broken and the other badly sprained at Junction City. The accident occurred while he was attempting to move himself on a moving train. He was removed to the Good Samaritan hospital in this city where he suffered two amputations above the knee. That occurred about 12 days ago, and now he is able to be about the hospital on crutches.—Portland Telegram.

Sam E. May, an old resident of Salem and Secretary of State under Governor Wood, who died in Chicago last year, left a young widow—his second wife—and an infant son. Lately Frank May, eldest son of Sam, by his first wife, whom he married in Salem in the late 50's, has become husband of the young widow, and is now the husband of his own step-mother, and step-father of his baby half-brother. She is the wife of her own step-son and mother of the half-brother of her living husband.—Statesman.

A San Francisco paper says: The Oregon merchants who landed in San Francisco are guests whose acquaintance is better worth cultivating than would be that of the Duke of Veragua or even the Infanta Eulaha. They have come to give us back some of the trade of which railroad monopoly here combined with railroad competition elsewhere have deprived us. The time was when San Francisco was the distributing point for the entire Pacific Coast. Of late years our domain has been contracted to Central California, and not the whole of that. There is an opportunity now to recapture the commerce of the Southern Willamette valley and it should not be allowed to slip. We trust that our visitors will convince themselves that trade with us will be to their advantage as well as ours. Business is business, and while many fraternal sentiments will doubtless find expression over the wine we do not expect anybody to deal with our people for any reason except social benefit to himself.
